HOECOMING NEWS

The Homecoming on Saturday, November the tenth, brought a large number of our graduate nurses, in addition to Board Members, Doctors, and a few non-hospital friends, to help us in the celebration.

It was especially gratifying to find that one or more from each year—starting with 1903 and carrying through to 1934—visited us some time during the day.

The letters, telegrams and flowers which came from many parts of the country added to everyone's pleasure.

The Annual Spring Dance, given by the Alumnae will be held during the week of May 12th, Commencement Week. You will be notified of the time and place at a later date.

"I LIKE YOUR NERVE"

"I Like Your Nerve" is the play to be given by the Alumnae Association. It will be directed by Mr. James D. Rutter. Watch for the date. The play will be given at the Y. M. C. A., 1804 West Congress Street.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

The following is an account of the work accomplished in Infantile Paralysis aftercare and other orthopedic work by the Visiting Nurse Association of Chicago. Miss Jessie Stevenson, 1921, has been appointed Supervisor and Instructor. She is a graduate of the special course given at Harvard, and is on the faculty of the Graduate Course in Physiotherapy at the Northwestern University Medical School.

In the past 18 years nearly 10,000 patients (9,890), of whom 4,357 (not quite one-half) had had infantile paralysis, have received the special care. 459,791 home visits have been made. Forty percent (a total of 187,106 visits) were to homes of patients who had had infantile paralysis.

Until 1921, this special work was done only with patients who had had infantile paralysis. In January, 1921, we began to take care of all kinds of orthopedic cases (except tuberculous.) The work has now expanded until any patients who can be benefitted by physiotherapy (massage, muscle re-education, muscle exercises, muscle examinations, etc.,) are taken for home treatments.

LETTER FROM GAYLE POND

The following letter was received from Gayle Pond, who is at the American Hospital, 63 Blvd. Victor Hugo, Neuilly-sur-Seine, Paris, France.

I have had a very interesting and profitable summer here at the Hospital. Have felt terribly responsible for the Presbyterian and American reputation for everyone takes it for granted I should know everything. They all say—"Oh, but you are American trained!"

When you realize there are nineteen different nationalities represented in the nursing staff, you can realize that that is more than just an idle phrase.

They are delegated to get American trained nurses, and the Assistant Superintendent asked me if I thought there were any more Presbyterian graduates who would be interested in coming. I told her I would write to you.

I find that you get along with very little French, so if some of the girls are looking for a change, and would study the language—even for a few weeks, I think they would have no difficulty.

On my free time I am exploring Paris on a bicycle, and is it fun! I don't know yet how long I will stay, but possibly all winter.

Gayle Pond.

GRAND RAPIDS MISSIONARIES, STICKING TO DUTY IN ADDIS ABABA, ATTEND HAILE'S PARTY

Gold knives and forks were furnished at the birthday fete of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia this summer—but no chairs. And standing up to eat beef-steak—even with golden cutlery—proved difficult.

Dr. Cremer, graduate of Rush medical school, is now in Addis Ababa with his wife, formerly Miss Madeline Van-den Akker (1934), both working in the American Mission hospital conducted two miles out of the capital city by the United Presbyterian church. Mrs. Cremer is a nurse, and Dr. Cremer is a member of the medical staff.

Recently women of the hospital colony were urged to take refuge in Egypt, Dr. Cremer has written home, but his wife, with other American women, refused to go. If war is declared, he said, the hospital hopes to hoist a Red Cross flag, enroll its doctors and nurses as Red Cross workers and continue service. They will not leave unless ordered to by their mission board.

The emperor's birthday fete opened at 10:30 at night, and all European and American society of Addis Ababa was there, even two or three Italians, "who looked and felt very much out of place." The Italian official representatives were not there.

Soon the side doors opened and the king was announced. Everybody bowed toward the entrance and the king walked in, smiling graciously to everyone. The king is quite a small man, about 40 to 45 years old, delicately built, but carrying himself very gracefully. He has a thick black beard and wore a black robe with a golden chain and a large gold seal of the king.

The queen is a heavyweight, of about 220 pounds, but is very good looking and appears to be very kind. Behind the queen came the crown prince, a lad of about 13 years, quite thin but active, and as boyish as any lad of his age.

The king and queen took their places in tall red velvet chairs with the imperial seal above them. On separate chairs on either side of the king and queen sat two of the king's pet dogs, something like spaniels. Music was provided by an orchestra in a balcony high above the royal chairs.

About 11:30 the king made a move to arise and immediately people opened a way for him to proceed into the dining room. The most important notables followed and then came the crowd.

The dining room contained a very long table with no chairs in sight and was covered with great platters of turkey, geese, beef, lamb, salads, cooked vegetables, bottles of wine of every kind, whiskey, mineral waters, seltzer waters, cognac, champagne and what not in that line.

Liveried servants in fancy uniforms handed out beautiful china plates from the royal cupboards with a golden knife and fork with each.

As there were no chairs, everyone helped himself to whatever he wished from the table and stood up eating it. To us it was unhandy, standing up holding a plate, knife and fork and trying to cut the steak or chicken. Try to carry on an interesting conversation thus, possibly with a diplomat, and have someone bump your elbow at the wrong time. Also in such a jam try to do all this and try to drink your pop or Faunt LeRoy water, or what not! It was an ungainly meal at an ungainly hour.

The king seemed to be enjoying his birthday party, and was all smiles to everyone. There was no trace of anxiety about the war situation with Italy. We had news that day from Mr. George (American consul) that the Italian lire went off the gold standard and the lire was falling in the London stock market. Also that there is dissatisfaction in Italy with the Fascist regime. Of course, if that is true, it is music in the ears of the king. We heard later, however, that these reports were discredited.
